Art Unit: 3614

1. This office action is responsive to application filed on October 4, 1996.

Drawings

2. This application has been filed with informal drawings which are acceptable for examination purposes only. Formal drawings will be required when the application is allowed. See attached PTO form 948.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. Claim 6 recites the limitation "the bar code reader" in line 1. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim 6 should depend on claim 5 instead of claim 1.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-13 and 18-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kull [5,681,015] in view of Jowers et al [4,126,779].

Art Unit: 3614

Kull discloses a radio-based electro-pneumatic control communications for use in a local are network. As shown in figure 1, Kull teaches a thumb wheel switch (22) connected to a microprocessor driven control circuit (16). Kull, also teaches a display. In column 1, Kull discloses a thumb wheel switch for allowing manual entry of codes by a user, i.e. functions to be performed by the microprocessor. In column 4, Kull discloses a memory for storing the control program for the microprocessor, a thumb wheel through which a user can manually enter codes, a display for displaying the functions and the items of the system. Kull does not specifically teach the encoder, the bar code reader. Jowers et al, on the other hand, discloses a remittance processor by operating an encoder with a program stored in a memory. A central processor unit (programmable processor) generates a plurality if groups of data signals in accordance with the program. A card read is also provides which reads stored information. There is also disclosed a display, a switch control interface to which the thumb wheel is coupled. See figure 1. Thus, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time of the invention to be motivated to modify the control system of Kull by incorporating the features (card reader, encoder) from Jowers et al because such modification will improve the operational reliability of the system, provide a stand alone system, and increase accuracy.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 14-17 are allowed over the prior art of record.

Art Unit: 3614

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
